PREFACE

English had been the language of British Colonialism. It still is the language of Neo-imperialism. It is one of the official languages of India. It is also the power language of global capitalism with its various manifestations in knowledge, communication and information sectors. English acts as a catalyst for social change, modernisation and socio-political reformation. It becomes an agent of democracy and human liberation. Traditional hegemony and patriarchy are questioned and resisted through an egalitarian and modern view of the world. English in India is also the language of modernity. Socio-cultural change, democratization and anti-imperialist upsurge can find its expression effectively through English. The emergence of New englishes has challenged and developed resistance against the Western monopoly and imperial culture.

In the third world academic and epistemological discourses, negotiations in English become indispensable. English studies incorporate critically the colonialist and nationalist discourses. English studies paradigm is a quadruple of relations in which the author and the reader are connected through the amorphous medium of language and the concrete medium of text; author-language-text-reader interconnections. The identities of the author and the reader are defined in terms of their cultural differences. The reading of the text is not confined to the quest for meaning, but to find one's position in the cultural context.

In this changed scenario, proficiency in English has become an essential qualification for prospects of employability. The courses have been designed with a vision to produce acclaimed scholars with critical consciousness and ethics who will illumine the world with their knowledge and wisdom, catering to the needs of the contemporary world.
